Originating from the 16th Century, this delightful cottage is perfect for keen walkers or those just wanting some peace by the sea. Set in about 150 acres of organic farmland on the banks of the Percuil River and bordered by National Trust land, there are pleasant walks to the coastal path or the tranquil Percuil Creek and the owners of Trevennel Farm are happy for you to amble around the farm. St Mawes is just over a mile stroll across fields with outstanding views. The village has a well established range of good quality pubs and restaurants beside the magical harbour. If the varied small galleries and shops are not enough, there are passenger ferries running from St Mawes to both the bustling port of Falmouth and St Anthony, with its hidden beaches and famous light-house.

The cottage is approached by a private lane and occupies one self contained wing of the main farmhouse. Guests have their own lawned area, but are also very welcome to use the beautiful main garden extending to almost two acres. The cottage itself has bags of character with thick Cornish stone walls and lovely window seats. The living room is really comfortably furnished and is a welcoming place to enjoy view of the garden. Up a couple of steps from the living room, there is a cosy farmhouse kitchen with all the usual mod cons. Up a turning staircase is a well fitted shower room and two bedrooms, a large double and a single, both with large sash windows looking across the garden to established trees beyond. There is a fourth bed which is found on a mezzanine gallery above the kitchen, accessed by ladder steps and has proved particularly popular with the younger generation!
